

WHAT THE INVENTION CLAIMED IS

1. A golf club bag comprising a first belt comprising a plurality of connecting elements at one side and a second belt comprising a plurality of connecting elements at one side, wherein said connecting elements of said second belt are engaged to said connecting elements of said first belt to form a belt of the golf club bag such that said first belt and said second belt can be easily assembled for easy and comfortable carriage of the golf club bag.

2. The golf club bag according to claim 1, wherein said connecting elements of said first belt is comprised of zippers.

3. The golf club bag according to claim 1, wherein said connecting elements of said first belt is comprised of easy securing straps.

4. The golf club bag according to claim 1, wherein said first belt comprises a soft pad.

5. The golf club bag according to claim 1, wherein said first belt comprises a plurality of securing straps at an outer flange thereof.

6. The golf club bag according to claim 1, wherein said connecting elements of said second belt is comprised of zippers.

7. The golf club bag according to claim 1, wherein said connecting elements of said second belt is comprised of easy securing straps.

8. The golf club bag according to claim 1, wherein said second belt comprises a soft pad.

9. The golf club bag according to claim 1, wherein said second belt comprises a plurality of securing straps at an outer flange thereof.

10. The golf club bag according to claim 1, wherein said first belt and said second belt are in an arch shape after assembly.